We learn to recite the Girl Guide promise:

I promise, on my honour, to do my best:
To do my duty to God, the Queen, and my country,
To help other people at all times,
To obey the Guide Law.

We learn the language of semaphore, how to build campfires and lean-tos and latrines.
We earn badges, pitch tents, learn how to use an axe and chop wood,
how to tie knots and how to survive the wilderness.
We learn to Be Prepared and to Lend a Hand.

We learn the Guide Law.

A Guide is obedient. You obey orders given you by those in authority, willingly and quickly. Learn to understand that orders are given for a reason, and must be carried out without question.

A Guide smiles and sings even under difficulty. You are cheerful and willing even when things seem to be going wrong.

A Guide is pure in thought, word and deed. You look for what is beautiful and good in everything, and try to become strong enough to discard the ugly and unpleasant.

We become capable girls, soldiers in our uniforms, with our companies and patrols and salutes.
We learn to build nations and at the close of the day,
Rishma Dunlop

we sing Taps, the soldiers’ bugle call to extinguish the lights.

Day is done, gone the sun
From the hills, from the lake
From the sky
All is well, safely rest
God is nigh.

And our mothers kept house,
did laundry and
cooking and ironing,
did volunteer work, refinished furniture,
watched The Edge of Night and Another World took Valium when their lives did not resemble the glamorous adventures of Rachel and Mac Corey, had hysterectomies at forty.
At the close of every day, they had supper ready when their husbands returned from the city, fresh and slick, briefcases in hand, polished shoes passing manicured lawns along the asphalt driveways.
